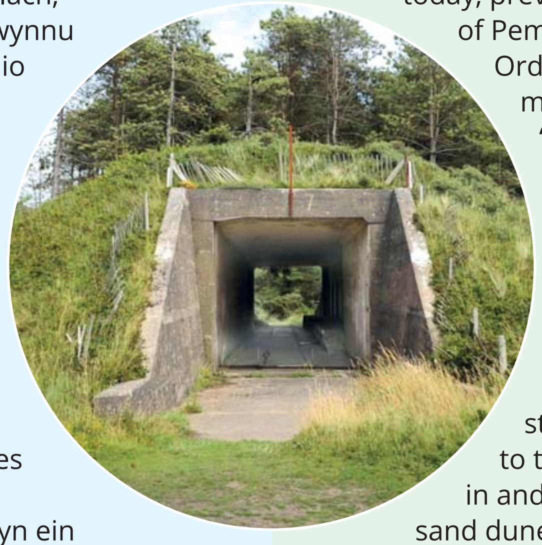
Parc Gwledig Pen-bre

Nid y parcdir godidog a welwch heddiw fu Parc Gwledig Pen-bre erioed. O'r blaen, dyma oedd safle Ffatri Ordnans Frenhinol Pen-bre. Os gwelwch y bynceri concrid enfawr ar y safle, arfdai ydynt mewn gwirionedd a adeiladwyd yn ystod yr Ail Ryfel Byd i storio deunyddiau ffrwydrol. Roedd tair ystafell ganolog yn cael eu defnyddio fel stordai, a byddai yna reilffordd i gludo deunyddiau i mewn ac allan. Cynigai gludo twyni tywod Pen-bre yr amodau delfrydol i'r gwaith peryglus o greu ffrwydron! Nid yn unig bod y twyni tywod yn sgrin effeithiol, ond roeddynt hefyd yn lleihau unrhyw ddifrod posibl a allai ddigwydd yn sgil ffrwydrad. Nid syndod, felly, i'r ardal ddenu cynhyrchwyr powdwr gwn a dynameit mor gynnar ag 1881. Dros y canrifoedd mae llu o longau wedi eu dryllio ar draeth Cefn Sidan - yn wir 1668 yw'r cofnod cynharaf. Bellach, darnau coed wedi gwynnu a phydru sy'n ymwthio o'r tywod tua phen gogleddol y traeth yw'r unig dystiolaeth o'r holl longau fu'n hwylio ar hyd y glannau hyn. Mae'r angorau sydd i'w gweld wrth y brif fynedfa i'r traeth hefyd yn tystio i hanes morwrol Cefn Sidan. Mae taflenni ar gael yn ein canolfan ymwelwyr.



Pembrey Country Park

Pembrey Country Park wasn't always the magnificent parkland you see today, previously it was the site of Pembrey's Royal Ordnance Factory. The massive concrete 'bunkers' located on the site are actually magazines built in the Second World War to store explosive material. Three central rooms were for storage with a railway to transport materials in and out. The isolated sand dunes of Pembrey Burrows provided the ideal conditions for the dangerous occupation of manufacturing explosives! The sand dunes not only provided an effective blast screen but also minimised any possible damage in the event of an explosion. It is hardly surprising therefore, that the area attracted the producers of gun powder and dynamite as early as 1881. Cefn Sidan is the final resting place to a number of shipwrecks dating back to 1668. Evidence of the vast volume of sea traffic which passed along our shores can be seen protruding from its sands towards the northern end of the beach. A walk of around 10 miles would have to be undertaken to see them all. Anchors displayed at the main beach entrance are medallions of Cefn Sidan's maritime history. Further leaflets are available at our visitor centre.
